

Water Treatment Systems are available in standardised Package and Containerised Plants for many different capacities. Package plants are typically used for small to medium capacity plants, while containerised plants are used for smaller capacity plants.